

NWI's Statement on Roe vs. Wade

We recognize that the United States Supreme Court's most recent decision about Roe vs. Wade is causing a lot of emotions and a strong difference of opinions within our community in the United States and across the world. The National Wellness Institute (NWI) further recognizes that this decision has already and will continue to impact the health and wellbeing of ourselves and society, no matter how you view this ruling.

Since 1977, NWI has been a place where difficult conversations about high-level wellness for ourselves and our society has occurred. NWI is here to provide the forum where hard topics on wellness and health can be discussed, ideas can be generated, and plans for how to create and implement a multidimensional, multicultural, high-level wellness strategy can be activated.

While the true implications of the court's ruling are still not entirely known, our actions are and will continue to be guided by our vision to be the worldwide voice of the wellness community. We stand ready to help lead and advance multidimensional, multicultural high-level wellness for everyone, everywhere.

We are committed to:

1. educate on competencies that guide informed decisions for an individual's whole-person wellbeing.
2. offer programs and learning opportunities that enable leaders to make educated decisions.
3. partner with providers and other institutions to create a heightened awareness and embrace high-level wellness as a priority.

We recognize that NWI does not have all the answers to the issues at hand, but we will offer guidance where our expertise lies to ensure that the health and wellbeing of ourselves and society are a key strategic focus, as we navigate what the future holds.
